SUNDAY TIMES (London, 18.08.1977) - "The First Prize went to a 22-year-old Romanian Serban NICHIFOR, for his <Anamorphose>, played by the Gaudeamus String Quartet in the smaller hall of the Amsterdam Concertgebouw. Its virtually silent beginning, seemingly addressed to the eye rather than the ear, already hinted at a spatial element which later furnished a valid and charming feature of its ending. The visual gradually became audible, and the mosaic of sound soon acquired continuity as a few folk-tune motifs were set in relief. This innocuous, inextravagant, musically and visually direct essay in quartet-writing deserved recognition and won an ovation!" (Felix APRAHAMIAN)

DARMSTADTER ECHO (04.08.1980) - "Das absolute Gegenteil dazu wurde in der Streichquartett-Komposition <Anamorphose> des Rumanen Serban NICHIFOR geboten. Komplexe polyphone Schichtungen, vorwiegend mit wisperndern Spiel am Steg und scharrenden Flageolett-Tone aufgebaut, zeugten von einer ausgesprochen raffinierten Schreibweise..." (Jo TRILLIG)

THE WHITE HOUSE - WASHINGTON D.C. (01.10.1992) - "Dear Mr. NICHIFOR, thank you for the beautiful recordings of your Third and Fourth Symphonies, which I recently received through the U.S.Information Agency. I appreciate your having dedicated through the dedicated through the dedicated through the dedicated to the inspired you in this uniquely creative way. The recordings have been donated to the Library Of Congress so that they may be preserved for the people of the United States. Your thoughtful gift will bring many hours of pleasure to all who come to enjoy them." George BUSH, The President of the United States of America

LE JOURNAL DE ST-GERMAIN (24.09.1999) - "...C'est pour honorer la memoire de Claude DEBUSSY que le compositeur Serban NICHIFOR a compose en 1999, <Le Martyre de Saint Claude DEBUSSY>, drame lyrique evoquant les dernieres annees du musicien. Il vient d'adresser au Musee Claude DEBUSSY sa piece pour piano et bande magnetique. Dans cette piece,on retrouvera tout l'univers debussyste: de la poesie enchanteresse,a l'appel du lontain... Cet enregistrement vient enrichir le fonds du musee (en cours de constitution) et devrait s'integrer au projet d'ecoutes musicales." (Jacques BERLIE)

LUXEMBURGER WORT (23.02.2000) - "...Finalement, c'est <La Nuit Obscure> de Serban NICHIFOR qui nous impressionna le plus. Concue comme un veritable <concerto pour percussion>,l'oeuvre surprend par son originalite et sa beaute intrinseque, mais aussi par la virtuosite qu'elle exige du soliste. Pas de bavardage, pas de fioriture, rien que de la tres belle musique, fracassante certes, mais tellement vraie!" (Pierre SCHWICKERATH)

How we do talk about music

An interesting sidebar of the language-music relationship is the use of onomatopoeia or nonsense words in talking about music. Listen closely to musicians in rehearsal once and it's interesting what they do when trying to communicate about the music they're working on. They'll say something like: "you know that one little 'beedleybeedly' bit? What about if we took a bit longer there - and then sort "unnf" on the next downbeat?" This sort of allusive. half-speech, half-singing, or other imitation of musical sound while appearing almost unintelligible as written text, is actually marvelously communicative and very efficient speech. I think that it is quite illuminating, really. When forced to communicate about music in a situation of real importance - like rehearsing a piece people use a verbal system wholly unlike grammatical written language. It's also interesting the amount of gesturing and body movement that take place in these situations - things that actually do communicate the dynamic. I think it really speaks to the fact that language is an inapt tool for dealing with music. This odd sort of pidgin that musicians speak to one another is really about as close as words can come to being useful in the matter.

The problem is, of course, that we live in a world entirely established to operate on the basis of writing. Other than speech, it is our principal means of communicating and is the primary means of remembering and retaining the thoughts and events of our world. To be engaged in music, an activity that is almost entirely off the table when it comes to writing effectively, has its good and bad results. On the one hand, written language keeps music in a curious ghetto in relation to the rest of the arts and to culture in general. Any musician, I'm sure, has had the experience of talking to other artists, writers, or to just generally cultured people to realize that these otherwise competent people knew absolutely nothing about music. Music is a mysterious black box for most nonmusicians. Without that universal flashlight - language - to probe and illuminate it, it remains almost an unknowable magic event wholly outside their imagination.

The positive side of this is that

music has a privileged place in the world. Like the shamans in the village, musicians, if they are not scorned, are met with a certain respect that comes from doing something which is powerful and yet beyond the reach of names and words. This dual-reality seems an unavoidable state, unsusceptible to education or explanation because the means of education and explanation is writing, and as we have found, writing is of no use. Music and the world music describes is destined to be as inaccessible to our writing mind as colors in the infrared or ultra violet spectrums are to our visual mind.

That language is a failure in the matter of music, in the end, does not trouble me - I actually find it rather liberating. Reviews don't need to concern you, (unless positive of course, in which case the exception proves the rule) analyses can be safely disregarded and program notes safely skimmed. As a point of fact, the almost universally silly things that are written about music would, if this failure was unacknowledged, be enough to induce real despair. On the other hand, if the complementary inabilities of music and language are embraced as not merely an unfortunate reality but as a finely-tuned mental ecosystem, then, this odd state of affairs is as comforting as the miraculously perfect combination of oxygen and nitrogen which keeps the corpuscles happily coursing through our brains and the atmosphere clinging to the planet.

PRESS REVIEWS

SUNDAY TIMES (London, 18.08.1977) - "The First Prize went to a 22-year-old Romanian Serban NICHIFOR, for his , played by the Gaudeamus String Quartet in the smaller hall of the Amsterdam Concertgebouw. Its virtually silent beginning, seemingly addressed to the eye rather than the ear, already hinted at a spatial element which later furnished a valid and charming feature of its ending. The visual gradually became audible, and the mosaic of sound soon acquired continuity as a few folk-tune motifs were set in relief. This innocuous, inextravagant, musically and visually direct essay in quartet-writing deserved recognition and won an ovation !" (Felix APRAHAMIAN)

FRANKFURTER ALLGEMEINE ZEITUNG (09.06.1978) - "Die Presse-Jury bedachte das rumanische Quartet mit einem Preis fur die ausgezeichnete Interpretation der attraktiven des jungen Komponisten Serban NICHIFOR" (Bernd

LEUKERT)

SUDDEUTSCHE ZEITUNG (27/28.05.1978) - "...Sein betiteltes Stuck exerziert die verschidensten technischen Affekte und Effekte auf den vier Instrumenten und zerfasert den Streicherklang schliesslich auf augenfallige Weise..." (Albrecht ROESELER)

DIE PRESSE (Wien,26.05.1978) - "...die originelle von Serban NICHIFOR..." (Olga OBRY)

LA VOIX (11.05.1978) - "...le Quatuor du Roumain Serban NICHIFOR,oeuvre d'une redoutable complexite, mais d'une indeniable valeur..." (Georges BERNAND) NRC HANDELSBLAD (Amsterdam,13.09.1977) - "...Serban NICHIFOR,in sijn strijkwartet - een brok onstuimig muziek maken - integreert hij vijf Roemeense melodieen uit Transsylvanie en past hij als een soort van harmonische basis evenees vijf Roemeens-orthodoxe hymnes toe. Let wel: hij doet dat in een uit gespreken avant-gardistisch klanggemiddelde! Resultaat hat grootste applaus en de eerste prijde van den jury." (Ernst VERMEULEN)

DARMSTADTER ECHO (04.08.1980) - "Das absolute Gegenteil dazu wurde in der Streichquartett- Komposition des Rumanen Serban NICHIFOR geboten. Komplexe polyphone Schichtungen, vorwiegend mit wisperndern Spiel am Steg und scharrenden Flageolett-Tone aufgebaut, zeugten von einer ausgesprochen raffinierten Schreibweise..." (Jo TRILLIG)

MUSICULTURA (Breukelen, II-1980) - "...NICHIFOR's final example was a 1980 cantata . The work deals with the peoples who lived in Romania in the most ancient times. In this energetic composition one can find a montage of folk materials and contemporary idioms..." (William P. MALM)

LIVING MUSIC (USA, Fall '93, Vol.11, No.1) - "...NICHIFOR has been active as a composer, performer, and musicologist. He has won numerous awards and is performed frequently in his own country and abroad. During the past years he has been especially active in Bucharest organizing concerts of music by Amarican composers. NICHIFOR did visit the United States in 1982, so he has a good sense of musical life in this country." (Rodney OAKES)

THE WHITE HOUSE - WASHINGTON D.C. (01.10.1992) - "Dear Mr. NICHIFOR, thank you for the beautiful recordings of your Third and Fourth Symphonies, which I recently received through the U.S.Information Agency. I appreciate your having dedicated them and I am delighted to know that our cities have inspired you in this uniquely creative way. The recordings have been donated to the Library Of Congress so that they may be preserved for the people of the United States. Your thoughtful gift will bring many hours of pleasure to all who come to enjoy them." George BUSH, The President of the United States of America

RHEIN-NECKAR-ZEITUNG (Karlsruhe,31.10.1996) - "....Und mit der des rumanischen Komponist Serban NICHIFOR wurde man dann doch noch hineingefuhrt in die versunkene Welt der stillen Gebete, des Archaischen, der ruhig brutenden Fauxbourdon-Klange, die zuweilen die innigen religioso-Harmonien eines Cesar FRANCK herbeizitieren. Doch dann 4 noch gesprochene lateinische Gebetformeln - da gab es alles, war die Glaubensseele begluckt. Dass davon gleichwohl ein subtiler Reiz ausging, blieb unbestritten."(Rainer KOHL) LE JOURNAL DE ST-GERMAIN (24.09.1999) - "...C'est pour honorer la memoire de Claude DEBUSSY que le compositeur Serban NICHIFOR a compose en 1999, , drame lyrique evoquant les dernieres annees du musicien. Il vient d'adresser au Musee Claude DEBUSSY sa piece pour piano et bande magnetique. Dans cette piece, on retrouvera tout l'univers debussyste: de la poesie enchanteresse, a l'appel du lontain... Cet enregistrement vient enrichir le fonds du musee (en cours de constitution) et devrait s'integrer au projet d'ecoutes musicales." (Jacques BERLIE) LUXEMBURGER WORT (23.02.2000) - "...Finalement, c'est de Serban NICHIFOR qui nous impressionna le plus. Concue comme un veritable ,l'oeuvre surprend par son originalite et sa beaute intrinseque, mais aussi par la virtuosite qu'elle exige du soliste. Pas de bavardage, pas de fioriture, rien que de la tres belle musique, fracassante certes, mais tellement vraie !" (Pierre SCHWICKERATH)

LA LETTRE DU HAUTBOISTE (France, No 5/2000) - "...Dans les <6 Melodies Irlandaises d'Amerique> de Serban NICHIFOR, les nantais, deja nombreux, s'etaient associes aus messins. Cette musique franche et limpide, se pretait bien a un effectif hors norme concu pour le plaisir de jouer tout ensemble." CORALITA (Trento, Nr.6/1985) - "... di Serban NICHIFOR - vivace e scherzoso elaborazione, tessuto su uno scheletro armonico in cui le tre strofe vengono variamente presentate... una precipitosa si conclude in un buffo , che sfoncia nel (e) dei due accordi finali." KOLNER STADT-ANZEIGER (08.12.1997) - "...der Anhang umfasst 135 Kompositionen... Zweiter wurde Serban NICHIFOR aus Bukarest..." (Claudia FREYTAG)

LIVING MUSIC (USA, Spring 2000, Vol.17, No.3) - "Serban NICHIFOR himself turned in some splendid performances of our american cello music, and ensembles of student performers who are sure to develop technical and professional polish with experience filled the remaining concert-and-a-half with vibrantly enthusiastic renditions of chamber works..." Welcome to the 2007 Visual Music Marathon! The Marathon received over 300 works from 34 countries for its open call, and we are excited to be able to present the very best of those today. We are also screening works chosen by our two principal guest curators, Bruce Wands of the School of Visual Arts and New York Digital Salon, and Larry Cuba of the lota Center, plus several "historic" works on 16 mm film. These will be complemented by other pieces from a number of invited guest artists and by live video performances by Brian Knoth and Jeff Mission.

The works on the Marathon represent a vast range of approaches to "visual music," from pieces in which the images and music are directly tied by the sharing of parameters, to those in which the images "interpret" the music (or vice versa), to works where the visuals are edited in tight synchrony with cues in the music. (In her excellent article found elsewhere in this booklet, Maura McDonnell of Trinity College, Dublin, explores the background of visual music in great detail.) All of these approaches can result in interesting and compelling compositions, and we hope that you will find many works of interestamong the 120 pieces presented today.

This event would not have been possible without the efforts of a number of people. I would like to thank Professors Ann Steuernagel and Isabel Meirelles of Northeastern University for assisting in the selection of works from the open call. Thanks also to Sung-Joo Kim, director and programmer of Animpact, Korea, for his programming suggestions. I would also like to thank Cindy Keefer of the Center for Visual Music for her expert advice on the planning and production of the event.

Thanks also to Maureen Ton, who designed all online and print materials for the event, and Arthur Rishi, who provided enormous help with the promotion and production of the show. I would also like to thank Andrew Scott for setting up and maintaining all IT systems for the Marathon and Anthony DeRitis, Chair of the Music Department at Northeastern, for his early and invaluable support. Finally, a nod to Eric Chasalow of Brandeis University, who conceived the original "marathon" concept in conjunction with a music program for the 2000 Cyberarts festival.

With best wishes,
Dennis Miller, Artistic Director

The Immersions Ensemble is an improvising ensemble which balances visuals and music. The musicians perform facing the screen so they can respond to the projected images while the video artist (Emile Tobenfeld -- performing under the stage name Doctor T) responds to the music. Doctor T prepares a largeamount of visual material on DVD, and improvises with 4 DVD players, 3 video mixers and a percussion controller. The performances are free improvisations for visualist and musicians. Another Kind of Blues is an excerpt from an Immersions performance that took place on Dec. 17, 2005, at Artists At Large Gallery in Hyde Park, MA. The musicians for this performance were Dean Stiglitz, electro flute; Romana Herboldsheimer, hammered dulcimer; Bob McCloskey, reeds and percussion; and Glynnis (Dragon Woman) Loman, cello. A sound can't be grasped in the hand; a note can't be held between the fingers. But it cannot be disputed that both are real. Music has no substance or material, yet it exists. So convincing is the existence of music that it extends beyond the performer, creating environments and coloring space; Music "sets the tone" and "sets the mood." Well (live) came into existence as the result of a performance/collaboration with Upside Down Umbrella. It is the visualization of one characteristic of music: It is the result of one take. Here, video of the room in which a performance of Well is taking place is captured and manipulated. The result is the "mood of the room" made visible - The invisible visualized.

In Cortex we first hear the disembodied voice of a 'cyber-innocent' experiencing the rush of entering cyberspace for the first time followed by an initial burst of rhythmic excitement. At this stage the vocal samples are almost unadulterated. As the piece progresses, the 'cyber-innocent' accumulates information, viruses, and other digital detritus floating around cyberspace. This is reflected in the vocal samples becoming more and more distorted. By the end of the piece virtually all sonic traces of the original 'cyber-innocent' have vanished replaced by a newly constructed digital personality...an avatar... and so to the second part of the trilogy. Cortex was commissioned by the GRM for the Présences Électronique Festival February 2005.

This abstract film, full of rich colours and textures, was created thanks to an inventive use of digital technology. It grew out of an unusual process of interchange between the painter lean Detheux and the composer lean Derome.

The result is a rare meeting of images and music. What we get is an intense

When Michael Rhoades sent me a .wav file of Release! I loved it immediately. It is a joyous rollercoaster ride through an exciting landscape of violently contrasting timbres, dynamics and rhythms with surprises around every corner. I was also highly intrigued by the visual beauty of the composite waveform, which contained shapes I had never seen before, including lines and dots, in addition to the regular spiky shapes. The video was created by extracting segments of the waveform, processing and animating them visually, then synchronizing them with the music they represent. It is, therefore, a very tangible manifestation of "Visual Music."

This piece is structured by the processed sounds of a small Japanese bell Furin. It begins with a single tone which leads the musical structure more and more dense and finally reaches the noise. The various stages of processed sounds between the single tone and the noise bridge the two components. A square shape which is colored with blue and white structures the visual part geometrically. The energy and the spectra of the sound modify the shape and the lightness of color to transform the square object generating in real time.

THE IMPORTANCE OF THE CHAMBER MUSIC GENRE IN THE PERSPECTIVE OF THE CULTURAL DEVELOPMENT OF EUROPE (speech)

- SYLLOGISM -

- Major Premise: the complexity of the genre;
- Premise min.1: the prestigious baroque, classic, romantic, modern, and postmodern repertory;
- Premise min.2: the accessibility of the genre a.) in the public perspective; b.) in the economical perspective (relating to the production, distribution, and consumption of goods and services);
- Premise min.3: the open configuration of the genre a.) relating to the ensemble structure; b.) relating to the interactive live-electronic music / live-computer music / Internet chamber music experiments (for example, the "SoundWIRE" research project http://ccrma.stanford.edu/groups/soundwire/);
- Premise min.4: the application in the curriculum of the new analysis systems: the Schenkerian Analysis, the Phenomenology-based Analysis, and the Computer Analysis software projects for example, "MaMuTh"

   (http://flp.cs.tu-berlin.de/MaMuTh/), and "Wavesurfer" (http://www.speech.kth.se/wavesurfer/)
   see APPENDIX;
- Premise min.5: the interferences with complementary musical genres (opera, symphonic, choral, vocal, jazz, pop, folk, rock, new age), with video productions (example: chamber music with real time visualizations like fractal structures from the Mandelbrot Set), and with some experimental applications (therapy, genetic music, etc.).

CONCLUSIONS ("E Pluribus Unum")

- C.1 The application of a synchronized european curriculum in the field of the chamber music course, leading to graduation and to the integration of the students in the so abundant musical activities in connection with the intra and extra-european experiences.
- C.2 The importance of the contemporary musical styles (in postmodernism process, minimal, spectral, ambient, new consonant, new age, visual, fractal, genetic, psybient music, etc.) in the chamber music repertory of the students (ca 33%) in connection with the traditional repertory (ca 66%), in a feedback process.
- C. 3 The autonomy of the chamber music professor (his right of self-government, in connection with the Bologna documents) particularly interested in developing an outstanding curriculum (that integrates musical instruction/ chamber coaching with creative presentation/ selected chamber performances) in order to produce distinguished and in fact! innovative musicians for the future. The educational chamber music program integrates also master classes of some important artists.
- C.4 In the evaluation of the musical performance the purpose is "to examine the effects of rating scale instruction on self-evaluation accuracy among student musicians" (apud Nathan B. Kruse, "The Effect of Instruction on Sixth Grade Band Students' Abilities to Self-Rate Etude Performance", Michigan State University, School of Music, http://www.rider.edu/~vrme/v8n1/vision/VRME Submission.Kruse.p df.). "Results indicated that rating scale instruction was more effective than no rating scale instruction in helping students improve self-rating accuracy (...) Rating scale instruction may not only benefit students' self-evaluation accuracy, but may also be a practice strategy toward improving students' independent musicianship."

More about H. Leslie Adams

(There may be some repetition from #1 above.)

Opera North, Pennsylvania's only African American Opera Company, cordially invites you to "Blake", the second presentation of An African American Triptych on Saturday, April 12th at 8:00 pm, at the Trinity Center for Urban Life, 2212 Spruce Street in Philadelphia.

BLAKE was given two notable excerpt performances following its VOX Showcase presentation. On November 7, 2006 THE BLAKE SUITE was featured on the Chamber Music Live Series at Queens College, Flushing New York, and on January 3, 2007 at the Schomburg Center in New York City. The latter presentation, by Avava Artists, was the official opening concert for the 52nd Annual Convention of the National Opera Association Convention.

The opera tells the story of young love, forced separation and the search for true love in the antebellum South prior to the Civil War. It also depicts the quest for freedom during those turbulent times in America. The opera, when performed in its entirety, is in four acts with a running time of about two and a half hours.

Adams' works are increasingly gaining in visibility and audience and critical acclaim. The composer recently did a week-long residency at Morehouse College, Atlanta, Georgia,

(February, 2007) which culminated in a concert of his art songs and music from a new drama with music, "Slaves." An all-Adams concert was also presented by the East Cleveland, Ohio Public Library in the Greg Reese Performing Arts Center (January, 2007). ###

On January 7, 2006 the National Opera Association awarded its Lift Every Voice Legacy Award to Composer H. Leslie Adams.

The event took place in Ann Arbor, Michigan at the Four Points Hilton Hotel, which hosted NOA's 51st Annual Convention.

Adams was present to receive the award, and earlier in the week participated in a Panel of Composers and Impresarios discussing the "Future of Opera in America."

His song group, "Daybirth," on texts of Joette McDonald, was the topic of a scholarly paper presented by Gail Robinson, with McDonald also present.

Adams accompanied Robinson on "Lullaby Eternal," a song from "Daybirth" at the paper presentation and again, at the request of the Convention, as a finale to the final session: a banquet which featured winners of the vocal competitions held during the convention.

Adams award reads, "The National Opera Association presents this 'Lift Every Voice Legacy Award' to H. Leslie Adams; January 7, 2006." ###

• Maestro Aurelio de la Vega presented an illustrated lecture on his music April 19, 2006, at the Institute for Cuban and Cuban-American Studies of the University of Miami, Florida. The title of the lecture is "A Long Musical Journey." The illustrated lecture was given in connection with an on-going international celebration of his 80th anniversary. For reservations, phone (305) 284-2822.

Rodney Oakes In Concert

I am enclosing the announcement of my solo concert on April 29. Although I have performed off and on over the past few years, I have not presented a solo concert of my original music in about 14 years. I decided it was time to share some of my more recent works in an intimate setting.

The room at Alvas is quite nice. It is a small venue, seating only 60. I hope I can fill it for this performance!

I have created what I believe to be some interesting works recently. I am especially excited about the Blue Bridge, a work for MIDI trombone and DVD. The material is the Vincent Thomas Bridge and its recent lights.

I hope to finish another work for MIDI trombone and DVD, Variations on The Krakow Fanfare. The material dates back to 1241, and am pleased with the progress I am making with this piece.

Thanks for letting me share with you information about this event.

February 1, 2006, Verona, New Jersey - Subito Music Corporation has acquired the catalog of Seesaw Music from the family of the late Raoul Ronson. Subito will retain the Seesaw name and imprint on the entire catalog, which consists of over 3600 works by more than 300 composers.

Seesaw Music Corporation was founded in New York City by Mr. Ronson in 1964 to create a place for the serious music being created at the time. Subito President Stephen Culbertson states: `Seesaw Music was one of the first `print-on-demand` publishers, before that term became current. There are many works with a long performance history, as well as gems that we hope to re-introduce to the concert music community. We are pleased to be able to keep the entire catalog intact and available. We hope to add new works to the catalog as well as modernize the distribution system by using current technology and adding online ordering capabilities.`

Acquisition of the Seesaw catalog marks a period of unprecedented growth and expansion for Subito Music Corporation, which recently assumed distribution for the Subito print catalog, the CD Sheet Music 2.0 product line, and several other series including Large Print Music and The Digital Editions.

From its inception in 1980, Subito Music Corporation has been a leader in the concert music publishing industry. Informed by over 125 years of combined experience, SMC is a full-service music publisher, featuring a roster of world-class composers among its list of exclusive artists, and offering typesetting and printing, promotion, rental, sales, distribution and copyright administration services for composers and publishers. • Dear Maestro WINENGER,

I have the great pleasure to send You my new composition "Song of Mars", inspired by a very beautiful, a fantastic picture realized by the NASA in this extraordinary American mission to Mars. In fact, the background of this music (the "objective" like organ sounds) is a conversion of the attached "jpg image" to "midi sounds" (with the "MIDImage" software), and the melody is my "subjective" contribution...

- The Composers Concordance would like to announce a new video on YouTube by our co-director, Joseph Pehrson.

YouTube

It's a piece called "Spinner" and it is here shown at the Moscow Composers' Union. The piece is for clarinet, bassoon, viola and cello (2007) and it was also performed in Moscow as part of the "Jurgenson Salon" on March 22, 2008.

Performers are Alexander Filatov, clarinet, Sergei Grashchenkov, bassoon, Anastasia Ponochevnaya, viola and Lydia Zinchenko, cello...

- Joseph Pehrson recently had two performances of his Spectral Harmony for saxophone and French horn by Jean Luc Darbellay's group, the "Spectral Ensemble" in Bern Switzerland and Mulhouse, France March 15 and March 17, 2002.
- In addition, his work Three Pianopieces will be performed by pianist Jeffrey Jacob, of George Crumb notoreity at New York University on April 29, 2002 at Loewe Theatre. Mr. Jacob will also be recording the piece commercially this Summer.

- Two additional pieces by Pehrson will be featured this Spring which use electronics and which are in unusual tuning systems. On Saturday, May 25th, 2002 Pehrson's Blackjack for trombone and electronics in the just intonation "Blackjack" scale will be played by Chris Washburne, trombone on Johnny Reinhard's American Festival of Microtonal Music at the Roulette performance space in New York.
- The Composers Concordance will be presenting another unusual work in an alternate tuning for viola and electronics on Thursday, May 30, 2002 with Olivia Koppell, viola.

Hultgren uses novel cello to set surrealistic tone

11/20/01

MICHAEL HUEBNER

News staff writer

Artburst's challenging season of cutting-edge music, dance and theater continued Sunday night at the Unitarian Universalist Church. Cellist Craig Hultgren, Birmingham's leading cultivator of new music, provided the acoustic and electronic instruments. Seven composers furnished the compositions, most of which were world premieres.

Hultgren has networked widely in his quest for innovative music, and for this concert he came up with some gems. Starting off with Robert Scott Thompson's "The Ninth Wave," Hultgren unveiled his new electronic cello a bodyless stick figure of an instrument that he used to great effect accompanying a bed of ghostly sound masses from the two speakers flanking him. Distant voices and seascapes echoed through the hall in a vaguely melodic, thoroughly engaging framework.

Romanian composer Serban Nichifor's "Hyxía" is steeped in ritual, the cello and vocals (the cellist is required to sing in Hebrew, Greek, Latin and English), successfully bridging Eastern orthodoxy and Western Christianity through an evocative array of pre-recorded sounds and cello harmonics. For "After Hours," Kurt Carpenter resurrected an analog tape piece from the days when Moog, Arp and Buchla synthesizers ruled the avant-garde, and wrote a cello part for it.

The juxtaposition of the live instrument with the synthesized whistles, bird calls and random bloops and bleeps worked surprisingly well. Hultgren mimicked, cajoled and otherwise provided a spirited accompaniment.

Matthew Marth's provocative "Waltzes for Capone," for cello and digital electronics, was the evening's most tantalizing and technically advanced composition. Crystalline bell tones and quotes from Strauss waltzes set the taped background for the work, which explored the warped psyche of the notorious gangster. The result was a surrealistic, sometimes naive and bizarre dialogue with the live instrument.

Of the three pieces for solo acoustic cello, two lacked the flare of the electronic works. The exception came from Dwight Winenger, whose Structural Variations on Two Obscure Themes delighted with its inventive and playful reminiscences on the Pink Panther theme and the hymn "Red and Yellow, Black and White."

Boola Boola Revisited

by Orlando Jacinto García

This article is reprinted from the June, 2001, issue of 21st Century Music by permission of the author and copyright proprietor.

Slightly more than 15 years ago, soon after finishing my doctoral studies, I had the great fortune of studying with Morton Feldman for 3 intensive weeks. These sessions proved to have a great impact on my career as a composer and pedagogue and I was fortunate to be able to count Morty as a friend as a result of those three weeks. One day not long after his death in 1987, I came across an article he had written entitled "Boola Boola" published in a collection of his essays by Berlinger Press, in which he strongly criticized academia. At first this seemed a bit contradictory; he was after all a Professor of Composition at SUNY Buffalo when I met him. However the article written much earlier was still consistent with the criticisms he continued making even after he was in academia. Given my own continual strong criticisms of the composition world in the US (which consists of large numbers of people involved with academia), I have been challenged by several colleagues to write a short article expressing my concerns at the end of the 20th century. The following is a summary of these concerns.

As we reach the millennium, unbeknownst to many of the participants, we find the Art music world in the US in a state of disarray and chaos, mired in a mediocrity few eras have known. Perhaps we the composers/teachers are at fault; the victim of our efficient technology where all kinds of information is made available to everyone with an immediacy not known before. We will try to teach almost anyone just about anything (after all who needs talent when you have technology). Unfortunately, the result has been that those without talent, musicianship, musicality, or imagination, have been invited to join and subsequently invaded our ranks. This situation is the accumulation of decades of work by the composer mills around the country propagating and justifying faculty teaching positions at the expense of quality while at the same time graduating mediocrity. This situation has reached a point where the majority of the 20,000-30,000 so-called composers of Art music in the US (figures compiled by the American Music Center); many of whom have or have had some affiliation with a university, are "successfully disseminating" their technically barren, unimaginative works throughout the university systems of our country and to some extent even parts of the rest of the "world".

I use the term "successfully disseminating" in quotes because a large percentage of my colleagues don't live in the real world and, as such, successful dissemination is a relative term. Unknown to many of my colleagues, a performance by the university choir or the faculty pianist at their or another university does not generally constitute a performance in the real world, pedagogical relevance notwithstanding. Concerts where the audience consists of composers listening to composers is not the real world. Concerts where the audience consists of music students listening to composers is not the real world. Concerts where students are performing these works, generally, is not the real world. Unfortunately, due to the overwhelming numbers of mediocre composers pushing their wares, any university performance can and is considered successful dissemination by my colleagues since much of this music would rarely, if ever, be performed outside of the university system. Please note that by this I am certainly not implying that music needs to be dumbied down to exist outside of academia, but more on this later.

When I read the bios of many of the so called relatively successful university composers in the US, they are chock full of citations about performances at this university or that university. In short, the Art music scene in the US has been brought down to amateur standing by the university composer.

The university has become the triple A ball, the NCAA of the Art music world and the composer organizations and their conferences most often basically provide the tournament or world series. Unfortunately (or fortunately, depending on your perspective), most composers never leave the minor leagues. The alternative to being presented at these events for many is not writing and/or receiving performances. In some ways this may be preferable given what I am hearing around the country.

The so called post-modern culture we live in where synthesis, a look at the past, a plethora of styles, points of view, aesthetics, etc. are all viable, has also been another catalyst for the opening of a Pandora's box of mediocrity. There is no better place where this is evident than in the conferences/festivals of so called Art music (whether it be acoustic or electro-acoustic or both) around the country where out of more than 100 "curated works" that are being performed you are fortunate if you hear 1 or 2 with anything to say. Most of the works consist of a "gray" blend of aesthetics with each composers presenting his or her "mix". Professional, high quality soloists and ensembles who do live in the real world, do not become interested in someone's works because those works were played at numerous university conferences.

They often become interested because the music has something to say (regardless of aesthetics or style). Of course all of the composers that I am discussing in this article will assume that they have something to say and that I am addressing someone else. If your music is not traveling among the professional world, whether it be Festivals abroad or professional first rate ensembles in the US (and I don't mean the wind ensemble at a university in Texas or the hand bell choir at some school in Maine) then I am talking about you. This is not to say that a composer's music should not be heard at a university. Many of us are pedagogues and, as such, students should be exposed to our work. Nevertheless, with extremely few exceptions, if that is where the majority of a composer's works are being performed, then something is wrong.

In the age of government cut backs, anti-quality, anti-substance (whether it be in education, the arts, or elsewhere), many of my university colleagues are on the pseudo-ethno, pseudo-jazz, pseudo-Mozart, pseudo-Strauss populist bandwagon. Let's write a music that will sell to the new NEA or its eventual new version, regardless of substance, imagination, or craft. Pretty melodies are back. Let's reach out to the condo-commandos at the retirement home; they do so love nice chamber music. Let's see what we can appropriate from another culture-probably Hispanic, Asian, or Native American folk music since these seem to be a big hit today. How about recent popular culture? The 50's, 60's, and 70's are quite in vogue today. Let's extract some tunes/quotes from the Pop Icons, TV shows, etc. of the time and try to add a few "twists."

Recently at a national festival one of my colleagues whose music does travel, exclaimed to me while listening to piece after piece of mediocre "gray" conglomeration of aesthetics, "haven't any of these composers ever heard of Stravinsky, Varese, Webern, or Cage." I briefly replied, "If they have (and who knows), in these composers' minds those aesthetics won't fly today, that music is not "catchy" or "pretty" enough, so why should it be considered?" Of course there is and has been the other side of the coin. The ultra pseudo-sophisticated technology, pseudo-ultra abstraction folks listening to their own and their colleagues works since no one else will. Finding solace in their schematics, diagrams, algorithms, software and hardware, rather than in their music. Fortunately (or unfortunately, depending on your point of view), to some extent the post-modern aesthetic climate has more or less diminished their relevance (except amongst themselves) although one never knows when the next "New pseudo-ultra abstraction" movement will flare up.

But let's be honest, an individual with some real imagination and craft can create a work of Art whether it be by using total serialization, chance procedures, minimalism, a neo-Strauss, neo-ethnic, avantegarde jazz aesthetic or whatever. The problem is not necessarily in the style or procedure, but rather by the fact that many composers feel that the style or procedure that they employ validates what they do, whether what they create in that style has anything to say musically. How many times can people write works based on 4'33" or Pierrot Lunaire? Not many, given that the original version just about said it all, conceptually and otherwise.

What is lacking in American Art Music? Auto criticism. It doesn't exist. Why? Because a great many of the composers that I am citing have been brought up in a period of time where you're okay and I'm okay and everything is great. We are all just great artists. We can all do whatever we want, no matter how bad. None of these composers ever ask themselves if what they do has any merit or benefit. Some basically just did what they had to do to finish graduate school and once they got out, kept doing it. For others it was rebel against what they were doing in graduate school, now that post-modern times are here, let's let it all go and Rock and Roll no matter how bad the result may be. Others were having post-modernist fun by letting it go before they graduated. How many of my colleagues and their students have ever tried to detach themselves from their work objectively and rigorously critique it? Few at best and as a result we are all suffering.

To add to the confusion in post-modern times, a tango, a rock tune, and a Mozart symphony are all the same. Music is Music everyone says (I'm okay, you're okay). Very few stopped to consider that Art music may be different due to something other than stylistic considerations. People stopped asking themselves what is Art (not an easy question) and decided to take the easy route and say it's all the same. The Beatles, the Rolling Stones, Rap tunes, Hip Hop, Stravinsky, Wynton Marsalis, Cage, Hootie and the Blowfish, the Art Ensemble of Chicago-it's all the same. Let's all just write nice tunes. Well friends, I am afraid that it is not all the same. Art music has always been more abstract and challenging than functional music. It is not entertainment, although many would like to market it as such, and those that can't take this fact should get out of the business and focus on writing arrangements for the Boston Pops (if they have the chops). Just like Michael Crichton is not James Joyce, neither is listening to Madonna like listening to Webern, and we as educators are guilty of not dealing with this and/or challenging our students and ourselves with these notions. Is it better?

Are apples better than oranges? Probably not, but how many of my colleagues have discussed these questions with the faculty teaching music appreciation at their university? From the papers and presentations I hear around the country relative to this issue, not many. Elvis and Varese it's all the same. Morty would have loved it (in fact Morty would have said we need more lame uneducated composers like the mediocre majority that exist today so his work would stand out even more).

So, as we head for the twenty first Century, what is in store? More mediocrity I am afraid. Until composers find a way to be auto critical and universities find a way to limit the number of student composers they take in and graduate (and base this on quality and not numbers), I am afraid that the current state will continue. The word "composer" in the twenty first century will not mean very much given the current trend (not that it means much today). There just is not enough of a need for 20,000-30,000 composers of Art music in the US, especially when the majority have nothing to say and the US as a country is not interested in supporting the Arts. It will take a truly concerted effort by teachers to really think about quality and, if they can, overcome their own shortcomings.

The greatest thing I received from the composers that had an impact on my own musical consciousness was the importance of self-criticism and the great responsibility that the creation of Art brings with it. Hopefully, this trend will "flare up" somewhere in the future. [LMJ]

Chapter 1

Link between music and mathematical sciences – always present and proved since Antiquity

The topic of the relation between music (the art of sounds) and exact sciences is more and more complex in the light of the achievement of 20th century music. Today, the new computer technique and the electronic devices are intensely present both in the composition act and in the interpretation and the understanding of the works of art. Until reaching this level, music had always relations with the sciences, which were present at an organic level. The perception of the contacts between the two domains, with their positions, can only enrich the act of creation. A decline in this act is present when the inspiration is missing, when fantasy and lyricism are incomplete and when there intervene (out of snobbism) a search for new laws in composition, other than the ones specific to the art, whose final goal is the esthetic category of the beautiful.

The music-mathematical sciences relationship was present early in Antiquity and was emphasized by a large number of Greek authors: Pythagoras of Samos (centuries 4-5 BC), Aristoxenos of Tarentum (4th century BC), Plato (centuries 4-5 BC), Aristotle (4th century BC), Vitruvius Pollio (1st century BC). During the Middle Ages, the art of sounds was considered an important subject in education, next to the other sciences of the Quadrivium: arithmetic, geometry, music and astronomy. Severinus Boethius (475-524 AC), Leonardo Fibonacci (centuries 12-13), Gioseffo Zarlino (1517-1590), René Descartes (Cartesius) (1596-1650), Jean Philippe Rameau (1683-1764), Herman con Helmholz (1821-1892) are some of the significant authors for Middle Age, Renaissance and Modern times, who conducted research on the everpresent connection between music and mathematics, as it was known from philosophy and from artistic output. Gottfried Wilhelm Leibniz (1646-1716) wrote: "music is an exercise of covert arithmetic and the one who devotes himself to it is not aware of the fact that he is handling numbers."

From the above-mentioned authors I kept the following assertions, which I considered the most significant:

- a) From Pythagoras the Pythagorean concept of acoustics and the theory of figured numbers (triangular numbers, square and rectangle numbers, applicable in modal structures)
- b) From Plato his discoveries of "the golden ratio" and on the heterophonic mode (this acoustic mode is constructed on the proportions of the numbers 2, 3, 4, 9, 8, 27 and represents the harmony of the universe)
- c) From Aristotle the philosophical implications on the relation music-mathematics (through the classification he proposes inside the sciences: theoretical sciences, practical sciences and poetical sciences). Music, together with poetry and architecture is in the poetical sciences group.
- d) Aristoxenos of Tarentum (considered the greatest musician of Antiquity) was also interested in the relation between the art of sounds and mathematics in his studies on acoustics, researching micro-intervals.
- e) From Vitruvius Pollio I took the idea of symmetry of form, his theory of the tetrachords (diatonic, chromatic and enharmonic tetrachords), the relationship between theatrical acoustical ceramic and the tetrachords systems.
- f) Leonardo Fibonacci left mankind an interesting arithmetic equivalent of the "golden ratio" in the law of organic growth and the law of Fibonacci series.
- g) Gioseffo Zarlino, important theoretician from the Renaissance, was preoccupied by the acoustic non-tempered standards and by the definition of the major and minor scales.
- h) Acoustical studies were made by René Descartes

(Cartesius) too, who looked on music aesthetics in concordance with acoustics and music psychology.

- i) Jean Philippe Rameau, an important theoretician, was considered the founder of classical harmony concepts
- j) The relationship between music and mathematical sciences was studied by Hermann von Helmholz too, who focused on the theory of physiology and acoustics of music; in his opinion the musical "harmony" (the consonances) creates continuous excitations and the dissonances discontinue excitations.

The evolution of this strong connection between music and science and its particularity according to historical periods is the result of continuous research, which in the 20th century developed into several aspects connected to the investigation of the artistic conception act, to the understanding of the works of art, to modern analytic methods. In the 20th century there were some artistic styles which emphasized this connection (perhaps, some times, not in favor of the lyric expression of the artistic message): 12 tone music, serial music, atonal music, stochastic music, random music, minimal music, repetitive music etc. Musical instruments developed very much, according to the technical and scientific evolution, next to the traditional sources using electronic devices and computers. From the aesthetics point of view, semiotic and semantic theories determined the development of quite an industry of explanations of the role of graphic sign and of the sound signal, explanations that are interesting to some extent, but which cannot get inside the profound mechanism of artistic creation and cannot establish precise rules of how to compose. The relationship between music and the exact sciences must not have a forced effect, coming from outside human creativity. In this line, I express some reserve towards those styles and those composers which have no talent to create a lyric expression and which transforms the art of sounds into a master craft of mixing uninteresting frequencies and rhythmic impulses, without coming to something expressive and clearly constructed.

I see expressiveness and the national character of the music as being two essential and eternal coordinates of any work of art, regardless the historic moment when it was created. In my opinion, the presence of rigor in the construction of music is capable on generating beautiful music even in this century, when technology competes with the sentiment; so the rigor of construction is not a characteristic of the ugly and anti-human music only. In fact, from another angle, my interest is directed toward a plea for the presence of consonance in music, this being not an old-fashioned concept, but an essential way of expressing the harmony, the beautiful, the light, the most beautiful arithmetic relations which human intelligence can produce, of expressing the human soul and spirit.

Chapter 2

The magical squares and their presence in music

A. Definition of the magical square

We call "magical square" a square of numbers where there are n2 numbers, aligned consecutively or not, so the sum of the numbers placed on each of the two diagonal lines is equal to the sum of the numbers on each column or row. This constant sum is named "the magical number" of the square.

B. History of the magic square

Astrologists of Antiquity, for instance the Chinese, in the 7th century BC, then the Arabs, were building talismans to which they were giving magical powers. These squares were popular in Europe in the Renaissance – for instance Albrecht Dürer, in his painting The Melancholy, painted a magic square with the magic number 34. In the same period (14th century) the Greek mathematician, Manuel Moscopoulos wrote about the magical squares, which he named arithmetic squares ("tetragonon arithmon"). He was first to present a general method of building a square of odd squares and double even squares. The issue of magical squares, seen as arithmetic fun, became a delight during those times, being of interest to great mathematicians like Euler or like Benjamin Franklin. Magical squares remain an attractive domain until our day, without the magical attribute, of course.

C. Rules of making magical squares

The odd magical squares may be made following the method of Bachet de Méziriac, who published in 1612 the book "Nice and delightful problems which may be solved by numbers", or following the method of Philippe de la Hire (1700).

D. Applications in music of the odd magical squares

Those arithmetic squares can be used in music, their numeral equivalence creating very interesting modal systems, frequently used by composers, during the centuries.

If we connect an interval to each figure, in ascendant order, starting with the semitone, we can trace the following parallelism:

1 = Min	nor 2nd	6	=	Augmented 4th
2 = Ma	jor 2nd	7	=	Perfect 5th
3 = Min	nor 3rd	8	#	Minor 6th
4 = Ma	jor 3 rd	9	=	Major 6th
5 = Per	fect 4th	1 0	=:	Minor 7th
		1		Major 7th

In this chapter, I presented a demonstration of modes applicable to the arithmetic squares of the 3,5,7,9 order and to the square named "hypermagical square", from which results constant rules of forming chords:

- 1) The reading of the figures in rows gets the intervallic sum of the 2 diagonal lines.
- 2) The reading of the figures in columns gets the result of the substraction of the 2 diagonal lines
- 3) Both the chords in rows and in lines are disposed symmetrically
- 4) There is a symmetry also in the plan of the modal structures
- 5) Each arithmetic square presents 2 intervallic constants of the 2 diagonal lines, by which the whole modal system may be built, which will have as symmetrical axes the numeric correspondence given by its "magical sum."
- 6) The system may be repeated indefinitely and is applicable also to arithmetic squares made of random figures

Making a numeric equivalence in the plan of durations too, there will often appear rhythmic imitation structures, both when reading rows and columns.

The relationship between musical forms and geometric forms

"In art everything is made up after three fundamental geometrical forms: sphere, cube, and cylinder. You have to learn to draw those very simple forms, and afterwards you can draw whatever you want."

Paul Cézanne

The music-mathematical sciences relationship has always been present and proved since Antiquity not only in acoustics but also in the field of musical architecture. Making musical forms often has to do with geometrical forms. It was not incidentally said that music is an architecture which evolves in time. This relation may be seen and proved from various angles, which seems to have been fundamental during the ages.

A. The relation between the five solids of Plato and musical form

The five convex regular solids (three-dimensional geometrical shapes) are: the tetrahedron, the hexahedron (the cube), the octahedron, the dodecahedron and the icosahedron. What can be the link between the shape of a musical construction (form) and those Plato solids? It exists organically, can be proven, and one can show the close connection between space geometrical thinking and musical creative thinking. It is a known fact that in the art of sounds there are few fundamental construction schemes, which have generated over the centuries various specific forms and genres like

A (single-part form)

AB (binary form)

ABA (the ternary form)

AAB or ABB (bar-form)

ABACABA (rondo-form)

If we associate the above-mentioned regular tetrahedrons with the reading of a mathematic Hamiltonian circuit, we will have succeeded in discovering the presence of musical construction schemes used in all styles. The basic circuit imagined by Hamilton on a regular polyhedron is the one which forms a closed circuit, along the edges, passing only once through each peak.

- 1) If this circuit is made along the edges of a hexahedron (cube), having the coordinates A, B and C, the road to be taken is ABACABA, which is the classical rondo-form.
- 2) Following the same principle, the relationship between a tetrahedron and musical architecture generates the scheme ABA or AAB (bar-form)
- 3) Reading by the same rules, an octahedron develops the following musical pattern: ABBBA or ABCBA.
- 4) The relationship between musical form and the dodecahedron (considered the measure of the Universe) is a unit: A.
- 5) The icosahedron, consisting of 20 equilateral triangles will suggest a mono-part form also, replicable to infinity: A.

Concluding, we may observe that:

- a) the octahedron and the hexahedron are 2 Plato solids which generate musical forms of the same family (ABCBA or ABACABA)
- b) the icosahedron and the dodecahedron give the same musical pattern (A)
- c) the tetrahedron has a unique form (AAB or ABB)

B. The relation of symmetry present in sounds

architecture Symmetry is an essential coordinate in composition and a rigorous geometric concept. Both in geometry and music there are several types of symmetry:

- 1) Bilateral symmetry (plane symmetry) which exists in music in palindrome canons in which the melody which imitates is the recurrence of the first melody. Many composers, among them Joseph Haydn, Johann Sebastian Bach, Ludwig van Beethoven, Paul Hindemith, Arnold Schönberg, Alban Berg etc., used this kind of schemes for obtaining effects in counterpoint.
- 2) Translational symmetry. This can be of two kinds:
  - a) rhythmical translation symmetry
  - b) cylindrical translation symmetry

Both types are used in music, in various composition processes. For instance, rhythmical translational symmetry (of infinite ratio) can be frequently found in all repetitive music, and cylindrical translational symmetry (of finite ratio) is present in the typology model – sequence –cadenza.

- 3) Plane rotating symmetry. This can be of two kinds:
  - c) rotating cyclic symmetry (rotation without reflection)
  - d) rotating dihedral symmetry (with reflection)

The rotating cyclic symmetry has equivalence in musical composition in the articulation of the architecture, a characteristic example being the exposition of the fugue. The musical equivalent of the dihedral rotation may be considered the palindrome type structures, transposed n times.

- 4) Rotating symmetry in space. This can be of three kinds:
  - e) symmetry made of a rotation in plane and an orthogonal translation in plane
  - f) symmetry made of a rotation in plane accompanied by dilatation
  - g) symmetry made of a rotation, a translation and a dilatation

All these kinds of rotating symmetries are frequently used in the musical creation process. The Theme and variations form clearly belongs to the typology of rotating symmetry with translation and dilatation in space because the periodic replay of an initial theme asks for a cyclic re-evaluation, and its more and more ornamented shape suggests a dilatation of this symmetry.

C. Structural rhythm – dynamic symmetry – logarithmic spiral

In musical scores, rhythm is present both as a succession of equal or different values and as a succession of structures, which ends uniformly or asymmetrical in the fields of an architectural configuration. Musical forms in their articulation, both at the micro-structural and macro-structural levels, present somewhat interior symmetries, which by their continuous projection during the piece suggests the existence of a logarithmical spiral. Structural cadenzas in musical language may be grouped on binary or ternary periodicity bases, which are present both at the level of primary configurations and at the level of large surfaces. The archetype of construction model-sequence-cadenza is also a translation of the logarithmical spiral from geometry to the art of sounds. The structural binary and ternary rhythms present in music, generated some typologies of architectural organic articulation such as the verse-rhythm relationship established early in Antiquity two large groups of rhythms: dissyllabic and trisyllabic.

Therefore, the structural binary rhythms may have their roots in the antic rhythms of spondees ( and pyrrhic ( m, m), and the structural ternary rhythms in the antic rhythms of the dactyls ( $\square$ MM), anapests (MM $\square$ ) and amphibrach
(M_M). Also, the rhythms molos (DDD) and tribrachic (MMM) may be found in music, but their uniformity converge more towards static cadenzas.
The rhythm anapest (MM) presents 2 short values and a third long value.
This sequence is identical to the architectonic form AAB which I mentioned before regarding the relationship between Platonic solids and musical architecture and regarding the typology model-sequence-cadenza. Cornel Ailincăi, in his book "Introduction to the grammar of the visual language" concludes: "If we think of rhythm in the most general meaning, its existence requires a continuous, uninterrupted movement of extension (the Greek word rhythmos comes from reo - to flow), but at the same time requires a division of the infinite extension in periods to be repeated by a rule. Therefore, rhythm is different from ordinary movement by a succession of phases whose discontinuity ensures the reconstruction of the movement".

Chapter 4

The relation between the mosaic and musical architecture

Geometrically, the mosaic is built up of pre-defined elements, like squares, rhombs or triangles. Inside the mosaic one can make original shapes, using various combinations of the above mentioned elements. Mosaic has been frequently used since Antiquity in the decorative arts, using its fundamental elements which made an homogeneous field paved with squares, equilateral triangles and hexagons. The Romans, the Persians, the Chinese, and the Japanese were masters of ornamentation, and they made all kinds of mosaic surfaces, using repeated elements.

The mosaic may be used in music architecture, at the micro-structural level, as well as at the macro-structural level. It can be found, for instance, in the technique of collage where music entities apparently dissimilar may give, together, a nice ensemble impression. We can take Gustav Mahler's symphonies as a characteristic example of this. Also, we can easily disclose mosaic in the juxtaposing of micro-forms, differently repeated in two dimensions. For this, the typical example is the passacaglia form. Here we meet the phenomenon of figure – background, where the perception discovers two simultaneous aspects of the same image. One is the background, the rhythm and the melody of the passacaglia, which remains unchanged, which forms the homogeneous pavement, and the other is the figure, built up of different polyphonic variations, laid over the background.

The ostinato form (which may have found its equivalent in mosaic decoration) is frequently found in music. Among the famous examples there are the 32nd C minor Beethoven variations, the 4th Hindemith string quartet op. 32 (last movement), the 3rd Bartok quartet (first movement), J. S. Bach's Crucifixus from the D minor Mass, D. Buxtehude's E minor Ciaccona for solo organ, M. Reger's Introduction, Passacaglia and Fugue for 2 pianos op. 96, J. Brahms' Variations on a Haydn theme op 56a (last movement) and his 4th Symphony (last movement), I. Strawinski's Psalms symphony, A. Webern's Passacaglia op. 1 for orchestra, A. Honegger's Pacific 231 etc.

Chapter 5

A. The notation of the "parlando rubato" sections used in my own compositions

Around 1977-78, when I elaborated Incantations I and II, inspired by manuscripts of Filothei Sin Agăi Jipei, which I analyzed, focusing on their rhythmic and temporal aspect, I was more and more preoccupied with finding a more rigorous way of writing what we call "parlando rubato". It may seem strange to want to write exactly a "parlando rubato" music, but I wanted to create a type of music consisting of rhythmical configurations at the microstructural level, to be used by each of the interpreters, so that each concert variant is as close to my psychological tempo and, especially, to the refined waves I imagined in the creational process. I used the first attempts of this kind in the cycle Incantations, and after I introduced that writing with consistency in all slow tempo music that followed (3rd, 4th, 5th and 6th Symphonies, the Concerto for flute, viola and chamber orchestra, opera The Snow Queen, ballet The Little Mermaid, the Concerto for strings etc.), this writing is nowadays a constant method of imagining rhythmic rows for various texts or polyphonic layers (some technique may be applied also in homophonic music).

Starting from the well-known Fibonacci series (1, 2, 3, 5, 8, 13, 21 etc.), including its translations (like 1, 3, 4, 7, 11, 18, 29, 47 or 0, 2, 2, 4, 6, 10, 16, 26, 42, 60 etc. or 0, 3, 3, 6, 9, 15, 24, 39 etc. or 1, 4, 5, 9, 14, 23, 37) I started to imagine various non-demoting series applied to a time unit (for example the quarter note) and to its equal divisions in 2, 3, 4, 5, 6. Those rhythmic structures resulting from the use of non-demoting, above-mentioned partitions present some constant characteristics:

- 1. Each configuration has a certain phrasing, both at the microstructural and macro-structural levels, given by the sum of the terms used in those series
- 2. The usage of simultaneous series (Fibonacci's series translations) may give the same pattern on the vertical plane (regardless of the subdivision of the main unit), if sum of the terms is the same

Example: the superposing of the series 3, 2, 3, 1, 3, 2, 3, 1 ... and 1, 3, 1, 4, 1, 3, 14, ...

- 3. It becomes clear that by applying Fibonacci series to 5, 6, 7 etc., equal impulses subdivisions of the main value, the result is rhythmic structures with refined waving, which are not always very strict (especially if they are used in combinations, like quintuplet and sextuplet); but if they are written in this technique, they may become a pattern to which each interpretation is close, with no major difference from the initial structure had in mind by the composer.
- 4. The Fibonacci series is the most pure type of the two-beat accumulational series, but the infinite reproduction of the initial series is the Pascal triangle, the richest diagram in algebric and geometric properties. This diagram includes figurative numbers series triangular, tetrahedric, pentagonal etc., often present in the rhythmic configuration of musical pieces.

B. The notation of some rhythmic structures based on the accumulational series of triangular numbers.

The series of the triangular numbers is 1, 3, 6, 10, 15, 21, 36, 45 etc. From their various combinations (taken in row or by one, two or several leaps), by their application to various basic time units or to subdivisions of these units, by their use in various partitions of non-demoting series, one can creat endless rhythmic combinations. These rhythmic structures always have the same invariable, which is the sum of the terms used in the numeric loops gives always the periodicity of the rhythmic figures at the micro-structural or macro-structural level. This phenomenon may be the explanation of the frequent assertion of the musicologists that "micro-structure generates macro-structure."

Example:

The periodicity is of 20 impulses (1+3+6+10=20)

Example of notation of rhythmic structures based on Fibonacci series numbers:

Liana Alexandra – 3rd Symphony, Editura muzicala, 1985, 2nd movement, page 69.

Chapter 6

Epilogue

The complex relations between the art of sounds and mathematic sciences which I tried to investigate in this study and to demonstrate in musical examples, with which creative thinking operates frequently, may define, to a certain extent, the rational aspect of artistic creation. But in addition to these investigations and demonstrations there must always be inspiration, the ineffable aspect of human creativity, which constantly provides connexions and original ways of expressing the beautiful in art. Together with the intellect, inspiration is that which gives aesthetic value to a work of art. When inspiration is not present, one may produce abstract schemes, inventive charts, and scholarly written explanations, but these totally lacking that warmth specific to any creative act.

In order to emphasize these assertions, I cited in the final part of my study some words of wisdom written by great individuals in the history of mankind, which stress the aesthetic dimension of the work of art, without which no final product of human fantasy, harmoniously knitted with brainpower, may exist. These words were written by Democritus, Heracles, Simylus, Plato, Pascal, Michelangelo, Shakespeare, J. J. Rousseau, Nicolae Iorga, Barbu Ştefănescu Delavrancea, Tudor Vianu, Arthur Honegger, Anton Webern, George Enescu, Abraham Moles, P. A. Michelis and Confucius. For this résumé I have chosen fragments from the ideas of Arthur Honegger, George Enescu and Confucius.

Arthur Honegger:

"Writing music is like putting a ladder without fixing it. With no scaffolding, a building in construction may stay in place only by a miracle, a miracle of the internal logic, of an inner sense of proportion. I am in the same time the architect and the spectator of my works; I work and I analyze my work..."

George Enescu:

"It is true that music is related with mathematics. But the great composers were no mathematicians; or, if you like better, they were, but in an unconscious way. Bach, with his genius, sensed the superior connection between the fragments of his works. His pieces may disclose mathematical ratio and proportions, but Bach himself has not created them by logical, deductive thinking. The composer is a mathematician, or more precisely, the mathematical spirit dominates him like the profound intelligence".

Confucius:

"If you want to know if a country is well governed, you have only to listen to its music."

BLAKE was given two notable excerpt performances following its VOX Showcase presentation. On November 7, 2006 THE BLAKE SUITE was featured on the Chamber Music Live Series at Queens College, Flushing New York, and on January 3, 2007 at the Schomburg Center in New York City. The latter presentation, by Avava Artists, was the official opening concert for the 52nd Annual Convention of the National Opera Association Convention.

The opera tells the story of young love, forced separation and the search for true love in the antebellum South prior to the Civil War. It also depicts the quest for freedom during those turbulent times in America. The opera, when performed in its entirety, is in four acts with a running time of about two and a half hours.

Adams' works are increasingly gaining in visibility and audience and critical acclaim. The composer recently did a week-long residency at Morehouse College, Atlanta, Georgia,

(February, 2007) which culminated in a concert of his art songs and music from a new drama with music, "Slaves." An all-Adams concert was also presented by the East Cleveland, Ohio Public Library in the Greg Reese Performing Arts Center (January, 2007). ###

On January 7, 2006 the National Opera Association awarded its Lift Every Voice Legacy Award to Composer H. Leslie Adams.

The event took place in Ann Arbor, Michigan at the Four Points Hilton Hotel, which hosted NOA's 51st Annual Convention.

Adams was present to receive the award, and earlier in the week participated in a Panel of Composers and Impresarios discussing the "Future of Opera in America."

His song group, "Daybirth," on texts of Joette McDonald, was the topic of a scholarly paper presented by Gail Robinson, with McDonald also present.

Adams accompanied Robinson on "Lullaby Eternal," a song from "Daybirth" at the paper presentation and again, at the request of the Convention, as a finale to the final session: a banquet which featured winners of the vocal competitions held during the convention.

Adams award reads, "The National Opera Association presents this 'Lift Every Voice Legacy Award' to H. Leslie Adams; January 7, 2006." ###

• Maestro Aurelio de la Vega presented an illustrated lecture on his music April 19, 2006, at the Institute for Cuban and Cuban-American Studies of the University of Miami, Florida. The title of the lecture is "A Long Musical Journey." The illustrated lecture was given in connection with an on-going international celebration of his 80th anniversary. For reservations, phone (305) 284-2822.

Rodney Oakes In Concert

I am enclosing the announcement of my solo concert on April 29. Although I have performed off and on over the past few years, I have not presented a solo concert of my original music in about 14 years. I decided it was time to share some of my more recent works in an intimate setting.

The room at Alvas is quite nice. It is a small venue, seating only 60. I hope I can fill it for this performance!

I have created what I believe to be some interesting works recently. I am especially excited about the Blue Bridge, a work for MIDI trombone and DVD. The material is the Vincent Thomas Bridge and its recent lights.

I hope to finish another work for MIDI trombone and DVD, Variations on The Krakow Fanfare. The material dates back to 1241, and am pleased with the progress I am making with this piece.

Thanks for letting me share with you information about this event.

- FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

February 1, 2006, Verona, New Jersey - Subito Music Corporation has acquired the catalog of Seesaw Music from the family of the late Raoul Ronson. Subito will retain the Seesaw name and imprint on the entire catalog, which consists of over 3600 works by more than 300 composers.

Seesaw Music Corporation was founded in New York City by Mr. Ronson in 1964 to create a place for the serious music being created at the time. Subito President Stephen Culbertson states: `Seesaw Music was one of the first `print-on-demand` publishers, before that term became current. There are many works with a long performance history, as well as gems that we hope to re-introduce to the concert music community. We are pleased to be able to keep the entire catalog intact and available. We hope to add new works to the catalog as well as modernize the distribution system by using current technology and adding online ordering capabilities.`

Acquisition of the Seesaw catalog marks a period of unprecedented growth and expansion for Subito Music Corporation, which recently assumed distribution for the Subito print catalog, the CD Sheet Music 2.0 product line, and several other series including Large Print Music and The Digital Editions.

From its inception in 1980, Subito Music Corporation has been a leader in the concert music publishing industry. Informed by over 125 years of combined experience, SMC is a full-service music publisher, featuring a roster of world-class composers among its list of exclusive artists, and offering typesetting and printing, promotion, rental, sales, distribution and copyright administration services for composers and publishers. In addition, SMC consistently identifies creative and practical uses for digital technology, with initiatives ranging from digital sheet music delivery and short-run print-on-demand capabilities, to its innovative distribution and promotion agency services and e-commerce functionality.

• Dear Maestro WINENGER,

I have the great pleasure to send You my new composition "Song of Mars", inspired by a very beautiful, a fantastic picture realized by the NASA in this extraordinary American mission to Mars. In fact, the background of this music (the "objective" like organ sounds) is a conversion of the attached "jpg image" to "midi sounds" (with the "MIDImage" software), and the melody is my "subjective" contribution...

Eine phantastische Novelle voller poetischer Bilder und magischer Anspielungen bildet die Vorlage f|r eine Oper mit einer zwischen Realitdt und Traumwelt oszillierenden Handlung. Magische Rdume aus s|damerikanischen Bilderwelten werden beschworen. Die Musik des Kammerorchesters bildet eine eigene Welt. The concert was an enormous success as testified to by the following review:

Birmingham News/Today Entertainment News

Hultgren uses novel cello to set surrealistic tone

11/20/01

MICHAEL HUEBNER

News staff writer

Artburst's challenging season of cutting-edge music, dance and theater continued Sunday night at the Unitarian Universalist Church. Cellist Craig Hultgren, Birmingham's leading cultivator of new music, provided the acoustic and electronic instruments. Seven composers furnished the compositions, most of which were world premieres.

Hultgren has networked widely in his quest for innovative music, and for this concert he came up with some gems. Starting off with Robert Scott Thompson's "The Ninth Wave," Hultgren unveiled his new electronic cello a bodyless stick figure of an instrument that he used to great effect accompanying a bed of ghostly sound masses from the two speakers flanking him. Distant voices and seascapes echoed through the hall in a vaguely melodic, thoroughly engaging framework.

Romanian composer Serban Nichifor's "Hyxía" is steeped in ritual, the cello and vocals (the cellist is required to sing in Hebrew, Greek, Latin and English), successfully bridging Eastern orthodoxy and Western Christianity through an evocative array of pre-recorded sounds and cello harmonics. For "After Hours," Kurt Carpenter resurrected an analog tape piece from the days when Moog, Arp and Buchla synthesizers ruled the avant-garde, and wrote a cello part for it.

The juxtaposition of the live instrument with the synthesized whistles, bird calls and random bloops and bleeps worked surprisingly well. Hultgren mimicked, cajoled and otherwise provided a spirited accompaniment.

Matthew Marth's provocative "Waltzes for Capone," for cello and digital electronics, was the evening's most tantalizing and technically advanced composition. Crystalline bell tones and quotes from Strauss waltzes set the taped background for the work, which explored the warped psyche of the notorious gangster. The result was a surrealistic, sometimes naive and bizarre dialogue with the live instrument.

Of the three pieces for solo acoustic cello, two lacked the flare of the electronic works. The exception came from Dwight Winenger, whose Structural Variations on Two Obscure Themes delighted with its inventive and playful reminiscences on the Pink Panther theme and the hymn "Red and Yellow, Black and White."

An alternate 60x60 mix of Canadian composers lead by Eldad Tsabary is debuting this weekend in Toronto and Halifax, Canada

"60x60 was initiated in 2003 and his since grown into one of the planet's most coveted contemporary music events.... its success can be explained by the sheer wealth of different approaches on display and its capacity of organically integrating them underneath the roof of "New music". "60x60 showcases a wealth of brief, contemporary compositions. There are no live performances, so you can't really call it a concert. Maybe it would better be described as a listening party. ... It's like a Whitman's sampler of the contemporary new music scene. " - Sound Sampler Greg Haymes, Times Union, Albany New York February 9, 2006

"60x60 features 60 back-to-back pieces that are each under 60 seconds long, each by a different modern composer. ... It's like channel surfing through experimental music." Geeta Dayal, Village Voice, New York, New York March 16-22, 2005 Vol. NO. 11

"... The idea of commissioning sixty pieces each a minute long has elements of both ingenuity combined with madness: ... A minute can be ample time to express a whole gamut of imaginative sounds, or it can be a constraint which forces an artist to isolate what is the most important element of a work. The point of the project is that it enables an audience to take in and enjoy a cross section of different approaches to new music within a reasonable duration. And the purpose of Robert Voisey is to promote new music ..." - Ingenuity

"60x60 is a one hour listening experience containing 60 works, each 60 seconds or less. Most likely you have never heard music like this before, or at the very least you haven't heard in a format like this: 60 works varying in style and aesthetic from today's composers living all around the world. You will love at least one piece. You will probably hate one piece. But whether you love or hate what you are listening to, within 60 seconds you will be listening to something different." - Robert Voisey

Robert Voisey is a composer and impresario of new works; he seeks innovative and creative approaches to promote the music of today's composers. ### LETTER FROM MOZART

by Michael Colgrass

2006 marks the 250th birthday of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart. Pulitzer Prize winning composer, Michael Colgrass' orchestral homage to the great master, LETTER FROM MOZART is a light, colorful piece, popular with audiences, and a unique and entertaining contribution to the repertoire, based on a fictional letter to the composer from Wolfgang himself.

Mozart's letter, complete program notes, and selected reviews are below. For perusal scores, recordings, and more information about Michael Colgrass and LETTER FROM MOZART, please visit www.brhoadsandassociates.com or www.michaelcolgrass.com.

LETTER FROM MOZART

Dear Michael:

I would like to be your inspiration for a piece of music. I have been watching the development of music since my time and am especially interested to see how an idea of mine would come out when filtered through the mind of a twentieth-century composer. Let me give you a typical Austrian-type folk melody (I'll think up an original one), and you apply to it techniques of contemporary music in any way you like.

Now, you may wonder why I chose you for this task. First, I know I'm your favorite composer and that counts a great deal with me. Second, you are a percussionist, and one of my secret dreams has always been to write something for percussion, but in my day it wasn't dignified. But perhaps my primary reason for choosing you is that your name would have been Migele Colagrossi, had you been born in Italy like your father. I loved Italy more than any other country.

Getting back to this new piece, may I suggest that it be a work of light quality, not superficial, Mozartian! Many artists today seem to feel their work must express the age they live in, and cite war, corruption and crime as reason for creating bitter and angry work. My God, if only you could have experienced some of the miseries of the age I lived in, disease, oppression, poverty! And corruption! Life wasn't all bad, of course, and there was much beauty in my age, but so there is in yours, and why not try to capture that spirit, too?

One last word: don't quote any of my existing music, just use this melody I send you (Goodness, I've written so many pieces I hope I didn't use this tune and forget having done so!).

Good luck to you, and I hope you have fun with it.

Your friend,

Mozart

PROGRAM NOTES

As the music begins, the "Mozart" tune is played on a piano or a toy piano. The contemporary techniques that are applied to it in the course of the work are many and varied, but the attentive listener will hear older, familiar ones too, as the composer meditates and muses on his subject and sometimes transforms it beyond recognition.

From time to time, small groups of musicians play music of their own in separate ensembles that are independent of the others. At a particularly complex moment just before the work comes to an end, there are six separate groups. The score is organized so that two conductors lead all the players through their parts.

PRESS

"The work is as fanciful as the title, which refers to a fictional letter the composer claims to have received from the Viennese master, exhorting Colgrass to write a work using a Mozart-like theme. Musically, Colgrass creates a kaleidoscope effect by embedding a straightforward eight-bar theme on a constantly shifting aural background. The theme passes from piano to viola to woodwind, but never in its entirety, and always mocked by the orchestra with frigid sustained chords in the strings, or the virulent sound of an oompah band, or a sudden explosion of accordion.

"The effect is like watching a Federico Fellini movie set in a freak carnival, faces leering in and out of focus in the camera, the feral sound of a calliope and human screeches penetrating your ears. Colgrass deliberately creates an unstable listening experience... A delightful contemporary work."

On behalf of the Daniel Pearl Foundation, we invite your participation in the 7th Annual Daniel Pearl World Music Days. We believe you would be an ideal candidate to join in our mission or promoting unity, tolerance and cross-cultural understanding through music. Participation in World Music Days involves no financial consideration.

New Honorary Committee member Alison Krauss, Herbie Hancock, Itzhak Perlman, REM, Elton John and more welcome your involvement as we continue the international legacy of journalist-musician Daniel Pearl - using the universal language of music to transcend intolerance and inspire unity. Since its inception, more than 2,000 performances in 75 countries have been dedicated and with your help we hope to extend this outreach even further. Participating musicians make a simple dedication from the stage, or in the printed program in the theme of "Harmony for Humanity."

World Music Days happens every year October 1-31 so we would particularly like to include any or all of your October performances. Your participation in World Music Days will help unite audiences around the world by transforming your stage into an instrument of peace and shared humanity.

Background

Danny was murdered in 2002, shortly after 9/11, by extremists in Pakistan; he was the Wall St. Journal South Asia Bureau Chief and an accomplished musician (classical, bluegrass fiddle, mandolin and jazz violin) who used his music to spread friendship across cultural divides. World Music Days commemorates his October 10 birthday in a united stand against the culture of violence.

We genuinely appreciate your taking the time to consider our request. We sincerely hope you will help us ring the world with sanity and humanity by registering an upcoming performance for the 7th Annual Daniel Pearl World Music Days. We look forward to hearing from you.

How we do talk about music

An interesting sidebar of the language-music relationship is the use of onomatopoeia or nonsense words in talking about music. Listen closely to musicians in rehearsal once and it's interesting what they do when trying to communicate about the music they're working on. They'll say something like: "you know that one little 'beedleybeedly' bit? What about if we took a bit longer there - and then sort "unnf" on the next downbeat?" This sort of allusive, half-speech, half-singing, or other imitation of musical sound while appearing almost unintelligible as written text, is actually marvelously communicative and very efficient speech. I think that it is quite illuminating, really. When forced to communicate about music in a situation of real importance - like rehearsing a piece people use a verbal system wholly unlike grammatical written language. It's also interesting the amount of gesturing and body movement that take place in these situations - things that actually do communicate the dynamic. I think it really speaks to the fact that language is an inapt tool for dealing with music. This odd sort of pidgin that musicians speak to one another is really about as close as words can come to being useful in the matter.

The problem is, of course, that we live in a world entirely established to operate on the basis of writing. Other than speech, it is our principal means of communicating and is the primary means of remembering and retaining the thoughts and events of our world. To be engaged in music, an activity that is almost entirely off the table when it comes to writing effectively, has its good and bad results. On the one hand, written language keeps music in a curious ghetto in relation to the rest of the arts and to culture in general. Any musician, I'm sure, has had the experience of talking to other artists, writers, or to just generally cultured people to realize that these otherwise competent people knew absolutely nothing about music. Music is a mysterious black box for most nonmusicians. Without that universal flashlight - language - to probe and illuminate it, it remains almost an unknowable magic event wholly outside their imagination.

The positive side of this is that

music has a privileged place in the world. Like the shamans in the village, musicians, if they are not scorned, are met with a certain respect that comes from doing something which is powerful and yet beyond the reach of names and words. This dual-reality seems an unavoidable state, unsusceptible to education or explanation because the means of education and explanation is writing, and as we have found, writing is of no use. Music and the world music describes is destined to be as inaccessible to our writing mind as colors in the infrared or ultra violet spectrums are to our visual mind.

That language is a failure in the matter of music, in the end, does not trouble me - I actually find it rather liberating. Reviews don't need to concern you, (unless positive of course, in which case the exception proves the rule) analyses can be safely disregarded and program notes safely skimmed. As a point of fact, the almost universally silly things that are written about music would, if this failure was unacknowledged, be enough to induce real despair. On the other hand, if the complementary inabilities of music and language are embraced as not merely an unfortunate reality but as a finely-tuned mental ecosystem, then, this odd state of affairs is as comforting as the miraculously perfect combination of oxygen and nitrogen which keeps the corpuscles happily coursing through our brains and the atmosphere clinging to the planet.
